Welcome

Dear Colleagues, Friends, and Esteemed Guests,

It is my honour and pleasure to welcome you to the 10th Annual Conference of ETNA , a milestone gathering that unites nursing and healthcare professionals from across Europe and around the world. As we celebrate a decade of collaboration, learning, and progress, I am filled with gratitude for your continued dedication to advancing the art and science of care.

As you all know, this year's conference, themed "Planetary Health: The Contribution of Transcultural Care – The Past, The Present, and The Future," invites us to embark on a journey of exploration at the vital intersection of human health, ecological systems, technological innovation, and transcultural care practices. Our shared mission is more urgent and relevant than ever: to understand how diverse cultural perspectives and practices can inform and inspire solutions to the complex health challenges facing our planet.

Throughout the conference, we will delve into the rich history of transcultural nursing, examining how the wisdom and experiences of the past have shaped global health outcomes. By reflecting on historical and contemporary examples, we aim to uncover the profound impact that culturally competent care has had—and continues to have—on individuals, communities, and ecosystems worldwide.

We also look to the present, where we face both remarkable successes and formidable challenges in delivering care that honours cultural diversity. Through keynote presentations, panel discussions, and interactive workshops, we will share stories of resilience, innovation, and compassion from every corner of the globe. Together, we will celebrate what we have achieved and confront the obstacles that remain.

Most importantly, this conference is a call to envision the future. We encourage all participants to think boldly and creatively, to challenge conventional wisdom, and to engage in out-of-the-box discussions that push the boundaries of our field.

Whether through research, clinical practice, or education, your insights and experiences are invaluable as we chart new directions for transcultural care in support of planetary health.
I invite you to fully immerse yourself in the sessions, to connect with colleagues old and new, and to share your vision for a healthier, more equitable world. Let us seize this opportunity to learn from one another, to inspire and be inspired, and to reaffirm our commitment to transcultural care as a cornerstone of planetary health.

Thank you for being part of this remarkable community and for your unwavering commitment to making a difference.

With warmest regards,

Dr. Irena Papadopoulos
President of ETNA

Dear Guests and Friends,

The Chamber of Hungarian Health Care Professionals (CHHCP) is very pleased to host and welcome you to 10th European Transcultural Nursing Association International Conference. The CHHCP was established in 2004 pursuant to an Act of Parliament that was passed in autumn 2003.

The professional advocacy group, which represents more than 120 000 health care professionals who hold mandatory membership, was reorganised taking a bottom-up approach, along the lines of 93 local and 20 regional chapters. CHHCP was established to provide professional and ethical support for the individual paramedical fields as they evolve into professions in their own right and to independently address the issues affecting the paramedical professions. CHHCP was also established to determine and represent the professional, economic and social interests of paramedical professionals, and to contribute, commensurately with its role and weight in society, to the development of health policy and to raising the standards of healthcare provided to the population. CHHCP performs its duties by performing the tasks and exercising the authority invested in it by law.

Training courses and professional conferences are held at county, regional and national level – independently or in partnership with other professional organisations. The Chamber currently has 21 professional chapters at national level. Chamber regularly participated, as an invited guest, in professional committees overseen directly by the Minister of the Interior, and in the work of collegiate boards operating in the various professional fields. Exercising its right of consultation, it has drawn up detailed recommendations regarding several draft laws and statutory amendments for the relevant government ministry.

Besides this, it participates in the work of the Ethical Councils established at county and national level. The establishment of the Chamber has raised the profile of issues concerning paramedical professionals and nurses in Hungary.

CHHCP aims to operate effectively as a public body capable of engaging in useful dialogue with the Minister of the Interior, municipalities and healthcare institutions. The CHHCP is collaborating with ETNA since 2005.

The conference programme reflects the high standard of abstracts submitted and there is a truly international perspective of approaches promoting transcultural health and social care in education. The aim of this conference is to encourage sharing of experiences and developing new collaboration and networks. We look forward to dialoguing and sharing ideas with you. In 2025 we celebrate the 20th anniversary of European Transcultural Nursing Association. This year is also significant for the Faculty of Health Sciences at Semmelweis University, as we are celebrating the 50th anniversary of its founding.

I wish you a rewarding professional experience at the jubilee event organized in Budapest!

Dr. Zoltán Balogh
President – CHHCP
Vice Dean & Head of Department – Semmelweis University
Chair – Local Organizer Committee

Dear Colleagues and Friends,

On behalf of Semmelweis University Faculty of Health Sciences, I am honoured and delighted to welcome you all to the 10th ETNA International Conference 2025 in Budapest. It is both a great pleasure and a privilege for us to be your host at this milestone event.

Our Faculty, founded in 1975, has always been committed to training highly accomplished, skilled, and open-minded health care professionals. We were pioneers in Hungary in educating dietitians, health visitors, physiotherapists, public health and epidemiology inspectors, vocational teachers, and paramedics. The spirit of our work is captured by the Latin proverb that greets visitors to our building: “Sol omnibus lucet” – The Sun Shines on Everyone. This guiding principle reflects both our personal and professional values.

As healthcare continues to evolve, so do the global challenges we face—ranging from migration to changing population needs. Truly, we must find new ways to respond through education, cultural awareness, and professional exchange. This conference offers a vibrant platform for exploring innovations in cultural competence, intercultural education, and forward-looking healthcare practices.

We trust that the conference’s rich and diverse programme will provide you with meaningful insights, broaden your perspectives, and spark ideas that will resonate far beyond your time in Budapest. May the connections you form here strengthen the bonds between people, cultures, and institutions—paving the way toward a more inclusive and collaborative future in health care.
Wish you an inspiring, productive, and memorable conference.

About Budapest

Brief Introduction:
Budapest, one of the most beautiful capitals in Europe, spans both sides of the Danube River. It is known for its stunning architecture, historic thermal baths, and vibrant cultural life. The city offers a perfect blend of history, art, and modern life for its visitors.

Weather:
June in Hungary can be surprisingly hot, with daytime temperatures often exceeding 30°C. While the average ranges between 25–30°C, recent years have brought frequent heatwaves even early in the month. Light, breathable clothing is strongly recommended. Evenings are generally mild, but bringing a light jacket might still be useful. Rainfall is occasional, but a compact umbrella can come in handy during sudden summer showers.

Currency & Payment Options:
The official currency in Hungary is the Hungarian Forint (HUF). As a member of the European Union, the Euro (EUR) is also accepted in many places, particularly in larger restaurants, hotels, and tourist areas. However, exchange rates may vary, and not all businesses accept euros, so it is advisable to carry some cash in forints.

Credit and debit cards are widely accepted, and ATMs are readily available throughout the country. Card payment is generally a convenient and reliable option for most purchases.

Transportation

From the Airport to the City Center:

- Public Transportation: We strongly recommend using public transportation as it is both quick and affordable. The BKK 100E bus connects Budapest Airport directly to the city center, with a stop at Astoria/Kálvin tér, which is close to the Semmelweis University Faculty of Health Sciences. The journey takes approximately 40-50 minutes. For more detailed information on ticket prices and schedules, please visit: BKK Ticket Information.

- Taxi: A taxi from the airport to the city center takes approximately 25-30 minutes, depending on traffic. It is recommended to use the official taxi services available at the taxi stand to avoid overcharging.

Public Transportation

Passenger transport on a single day is provided by some 1,900 buses, trams, trolleybuses, metro and suburban railway trains, which have more than 43 thousand departures combined.
Beside these options you can also travel with our public bike-sharing service MOL Bubi, taxi or special transport services like the Funicular, Chairlift, or boat.

For further details about ticket prices, passes, and timetables, please visit:

bkk.hu/en

BKK App / BudapestGO:

The BKK and BudapestGO mobile apps help with purchasing tickets, viewing timetables, and selecting the best routes. These apps are available for both Android and iOS devices and are free of charge, significantly enhancing the convenience of traveling around the city.

Google Play App Store

Public Transportation to Semmelweis University Faculty of Health Sciences:

Take the 100E Airport Express bus from Terminal 2 directly to Astoria or Kálvin tér (you can get off at either one). The service runs frequently, takes about 40–50 minutes, and requires a special ticket.

Astoria → Faculty of Health Sciences

From Astoria station (where the 100E stops), you have two easy options:

Option A: Walk

It's roughly a 10-minute walk:

Exit Astoria, head east along Rákóczi street, turn left on Szentkirály street

Option B: Bus for one stop

Right outside Astoria, Catch bus 9, 5, 8E, 110, or 133E to Uránia bus stop.

Please note: the name "Uránia" will not appear on the front of the bus – only the final destination is displayed. Make sure to check the route at the bus stop to confirm you're boarding in the correct direction.

From Uránia, it's just a 2-minute walk to Szentkirály sreet.

Metro:

M4 (Green Line)*: The closest metro station to the university is Kálvin tér, which is a short walk from the Faculty of Health Sciences. From here, you can quickly reach the university by foot.

Other potion: M2 (Red Line) to Astoria , take the exit towards Múzeum körút. Continue on Rákóczi Street towards Blaha Lujza Square on the right, then turn right at the second street corner into Szentkirály Street. Continue for two hundred meters to the University building.

Introducing the Keynote Speakers

Tamás Palicz MD PhD
Vice Director,
Semmelweis University Health Services Management Training Centre

Dr. Tamás Palicz earned his medical degree from the University of Debrecen in 1993 and became a specialist in internal medicine in 1998.

After completing his clinical years, he has been involved in planning, implementing, and monitoring EU-funded projects since 2000.

Additionally, since 2003, he has held leadership roles in healthcare and public administration institutions. His primary interests include leading organizational change in human-service organizations and managing related projects.

He has been the Deputy Strategic Director of the Semmelweis University Health Management Training Center since 2015. In recent years, in the context of healthcare's digital transformation, he has focused on artificial intelligence and cybersecurity within healthcare organizations.

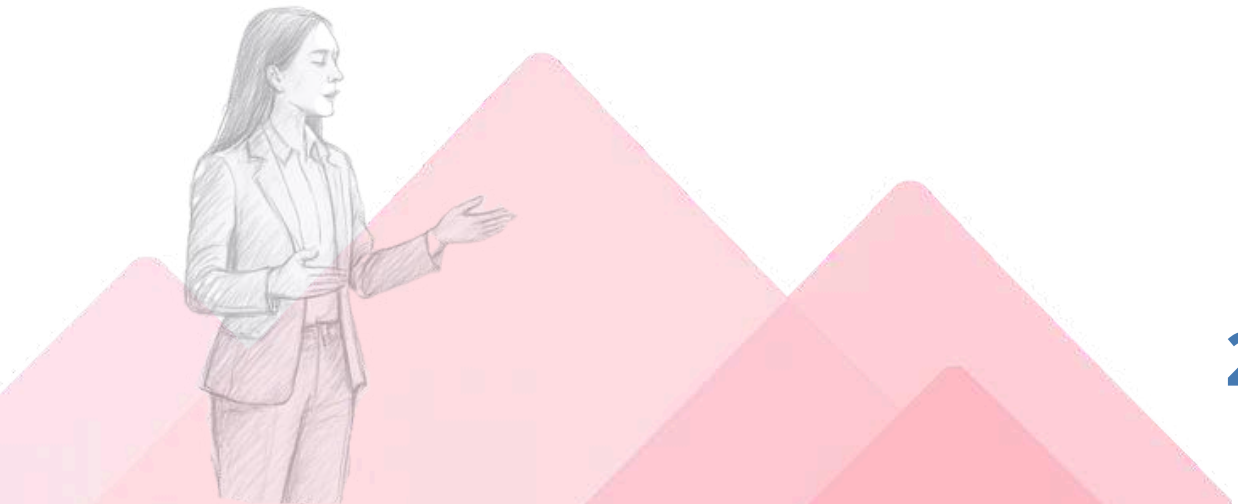
Małgorzata Szkup, PhD, MSc, RN,
Associate Professor,
Pomeranian Medical University
in Szczecin

Ass. Professor Małgorzata Szkup, is an academic and practitioner in the field of nursing. She began her nursing career in 2002 by enrolling at Pomeranian Medical University in Szczecin (PMU), where she earned her BSc. In 2007, she obtained an MSc, followed by a PhD in Medical Sciences in 2010.

Immediately after completing her master's degree, she joined the Department of Nursing Science at the Faculty of Health Sciences at PMU. She currently serves as the Head of the Independent Department of Social Nursing and Vice-Dean of the Faculty of Health Sciences.

Her interest in transcultural nursing began 15 years ago when this subject was introduced into the standard nursing education curriculum in Poland and played a pioneering role in this field by developing the first transcultural nursing, which laid the foundation for her continued educational efforts. She has been committed to fostering students' cultural competencies, compassion, and reflection.

Her significant achievements is leading the 'MultiCultiMed'. She established a consortium of six European universities, strengthening international collaboration in transcultural medical education.



Candan Oztur,
Professor Doctor,
Near East University, Faculty of Nursing,
Department of Child Health and Diseases Nursing

She completed her graduation education at Ege University in Izmir, Turkey, and is currently a Professor of Paediatric Nursing and the Head of the Department of Paediatric Nursing, Near East University in Northern Cyprus.

She is one of the pioneers of transcultural nursing education in Turkey. The course Transcultural Nursing was introduced for the first time in the curriculum of Dokuz Eylül University School of Nursing. She has coordinated international relations at various institutions and has taken part in numerous international and European Union-funded projects.

She is a founding member of the European Transcultural Nursing Association (ETNA), which was established in 2005 in Italy and two terms as the Secretary of the Association and organized ETNA's first international congress in 2007. She currently continues to serve as ETNA's national representative for Turkey.

She has published numerous national and international articles and book chapters. Since 2000, she has been committed to research and education focused on integrating cultural diversity into nursing practice. She continues to be a prominent voice in the field of transcultural nursing.

Acknowledgements

The 10th International ETNA Conference in Budapest would not have been possible without the support of many dedicated individuals. I would like to take this opportunity to express my sincere gratitude to everyone who contributed to the success of this event.

First and foremost, I extend my heartfelt thanks to all participants – there would be no conference without you. Your presence and engagement are what brought this event to life. Thank you for coming to Hungary, to Budapest.

We are also deeply grateful to our outstanding keynote speakers and session chairs for sharing their expertise and insights. Our thanks go as well to all oral and poster presenters for enriching the program with their valuable contributions.

Special thanks are due to our sponsors, whose generous support made this event possible. I also wish to acknowledge the members of the ETNA Executive Committee and the Scientific Committee, as well as Semmelweis University and the Buda Jewish Charity Hospital, for their hard work, collaboration, and unwavering support throughout the planning and implementation phases.

A heartfelt thank you goes to the students of the Faculty of Health Sciences at Semmelweis University, who served as local organisers before and during the conference. Their enthusiasm and commitment greatly contributed to the smooth running of the event.

Organising the 10th International ETNA Conference in Budapest, in cooperation with Semmelweis University's Faculty of Health Sciences, has been both an enriching and enjoyable journey for all of us involved.

On behalf of the Organising Committee,

Dr. Zoltán Balogh
President – CHHCP
Head of Department – Semmelweis University
Chair – Local Organizer Committee
